

- 1 The photograph shows parts of Tussilago farfara. This is a native species of plant that grows in North Africa and Central Asia.

© Zoonar GmbH / Alamy Stock Photo

This plant can be used as a medicine.

- (a) Describe how the antibacterial activity of different parts of this plant could be compared.

(6)

(b) Scientists have isolated antibacterial compounds from plants such as Tussilago farfara.

(i) State what is meant by the terms bacteriostatic and bactericidal antibiotics.

(2)

(ii) Explain how the code of practice for prescribing antibiotics helps to control infections.

(2)

(Total for Question 1 = 10 marks)