

- 7 A type of disaccharide produced from the breakdown of starch is composed of two molecules of α -glucose.

Which row describes the results of the tests for this disaccharide?

	heat disaccharide solution with Benedict's solution	heat disaccharide solution with acid, neutralise, and then heat with Benedict's solution
A	red precipitate forms	red precipitate forms
B	red precipitate forms	solution remains blue
C	solution remains blue	red precipitate forms
D	solution remains blue	solution remains blue